

The Clipper

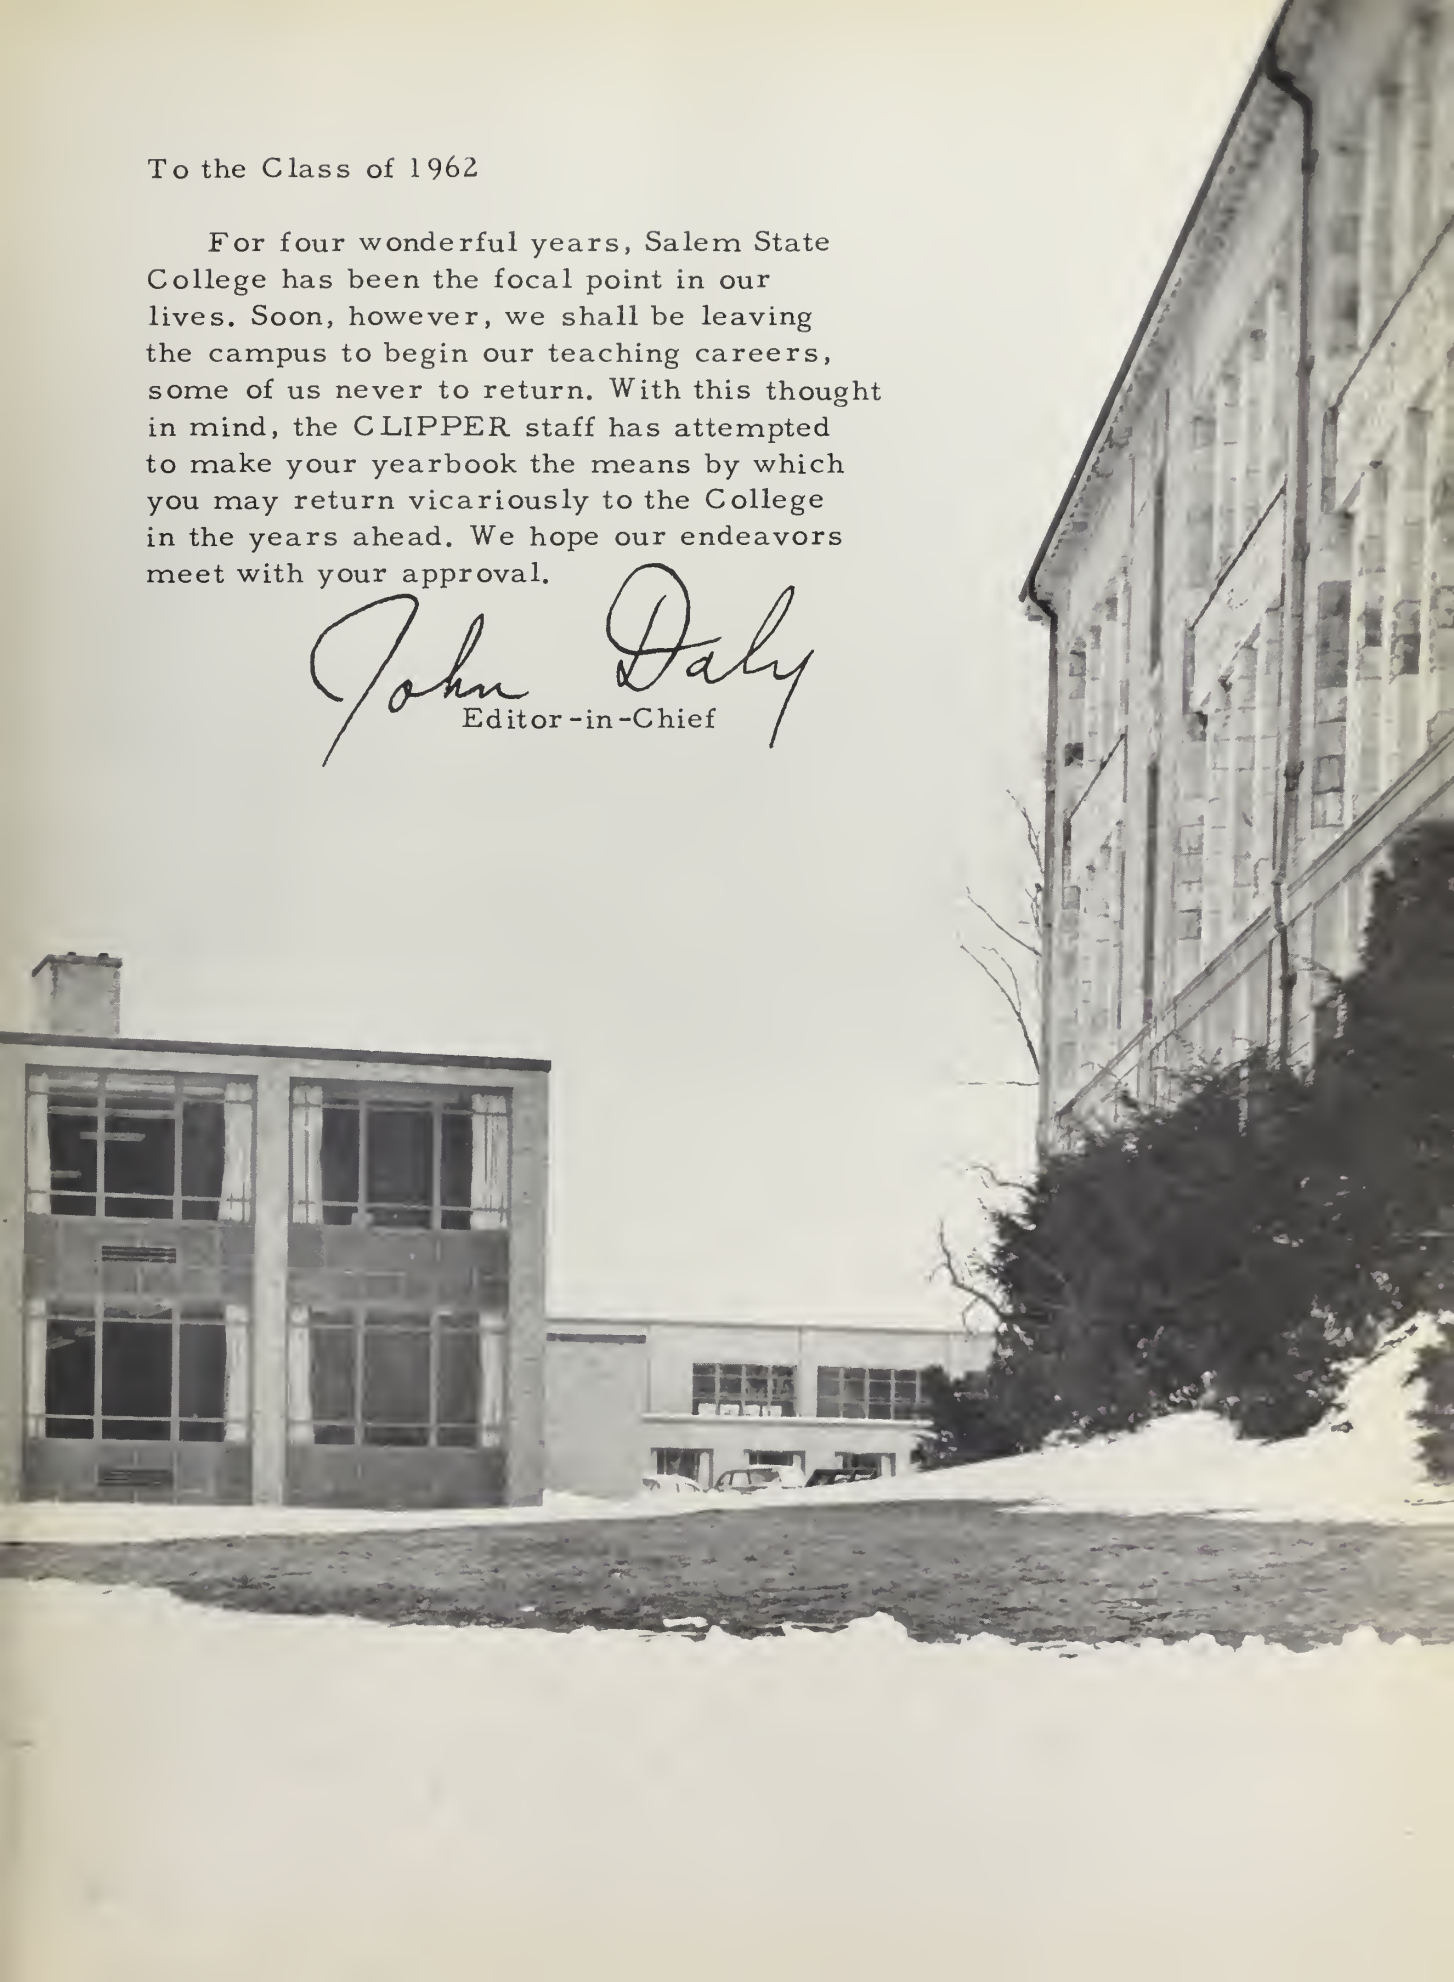

1962

To the Class of 1962

For four wonderful years, Salem State College has been the focal point in our lives. Soon, however, we shall be leaving the campus to begin our teaching careers, some of us never to return. With this thought in mind, the CLIPPER staff has attempted to make your yearbook the means by which you may return vicariously to the College in the years ahead. We hope our endeavors meet with your approval.

STATE COLLEGE AT SALEM

In writing a message to the Class of 1962, I should like to stress the important place each of you will hold as a teacher in our society. "A little learning is a dangerous thing; drink deep or taste not the Pierian Spring." I take my thoughts in writing to you from the familiar words of Alexander Pope. As you know, the Pierian Spring was the spring in North Thessaly from which the Muses drank and so refreshed the wisdoms and skills in the arts and sciences with which they inspired the human race.

Graduation with the degree in education which you will receive marks neither a separation from college nor from learning. Today, as never before, great demands are being placed upon the teacher, for the classified body of knowledge is becoming greater and greater. There is a dearth of elementary and secondary teachers in the fields of the arts and sciences. To be equal to the task of teaching young Americans in the late twentieth century, a teacher must continually study while he is teaching. The four-year program in teacher education is only the beginning. I would urge each of you to continue your study in the area of arts, sciences, and the languages.

If you continually deepen your knowledge, you will awaken in your pupils intellectual curiosity. An unique reward will come to you when you see a young mind seeking to satisfy its intellectual curiosity, for you will know that without the effort to share your knowledge the pupil would not be able to deepen his. It is a truism that the teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops. Your long and continuous preparation will benefit in unmeasured ways the young minds you influence.

In behalf of the faculty and staff may I extend congratulations and best wishes to the Class of 1962.

May you return to the college often.

Sincerely yours,

Frederick A. Meier

In Memoriam

J. CLIFFORD GEER

1950 - 1961

"The hearing ear and the seeing eye"

Not long after the beginning of the present academic year, the entire College was saddened by the death of Professor J. Clifford Geer, chairman of the Department of Audio-Visual Instruction. Mr. Geer brought to Salem a wealth of experience, gained in the educational systems of Connecticut and Massachusetts.

His kindly sense of humor, and his awareness of the problems of the students combined to make him a faculty member who will long be missed by those who knew him.

Ever mindful that the development of character should accompany the acquisitions and understandings, Miss Hudgins sought and secured in her classes an awareness of those simple virtues — often overlooked in this fast-moving age — of promptness, neatness, responsibility and self-discipline.

The many children influenced by Miss Hudgins during her years of public service came to realize that her standards were high and that they were expected to work at their fullest capacities. She has been a credit to the teaching profession.

Ann K. Clark was graduated from Salem fifty years ago. Thirty-five years ago she entered the service of her Alma Mater, and thereafter gave of her time and energy with unwavering loyalty and devotion. She is now retiring, and we wish her many happy years in which to enjoy deserved hours of leisure.

Salem's Ambassador of Good Will

BRUCE F. JEFFERY

1947 - 1962

Mr. Jeffery's retirement this June marks the end of a distinguished career as chairman of the Business Education Department. During his years at Salem, his untiring efforts on behalf of our College have earned the unqualified admiration of all who know him. Once Acting President of the College, he has been a leading figure in the rapid growth of Salem.

Mr. Jeffery has served for many years as chairman of the Senior Class advisers, and it is in this capacity that we have come to know him best. What has impressed us most about him is his sympathetic concern for every student in the College. Always courteous, he is truly a gentleman. We thank him sincerely for the invaluable aid he has given us and wish for him the happiness in retirement that he so richly deserves.

THE SENIOR NEWSMAGAZINE

EDUCATION

Up the path to Salem Teachers College, in the fall of 1958, came three hundred freshmen, the Class of 1962. Beset by doubts about their ability to cope with the demands of higher education, they had, within three short months, lost the savoir faire which had been theirs as high school seniors. What happened to these three hundred lost souls? Did any survive? The answers to these and many other questions are the subject of this story.

Lowly Frosh

Thanks to the efforts of both faculty and upperclassmen, the Class of '62 did not long remain bewildered. Orientation Day provided many of the answers to their questions as Big Brothers and Big Sisters guided the neophytes through the initial steps of their undergraduate careers. After a morning devoted to formal orientation, the entire College adjourned to Forest River Park, where the incoming Freshmen, as guests of honor, became aware that they had become part of a close-knit family, a group where cooperation was the byword.

The Class of '62 soon settled into the daily routine of college life. College work, they discovered, could be mastered if enough midnight oil were consumed. Absorbed completely by their studies, they failed to heed the danger signals that warned them of impending disaster. The calculating stares of certain upperclassmen, the suddenly-halted discussions among sophomores, the supercilious shouts of "You'll be sorry!"; none of these omens had meaning for those studious young men and women, completely engrossed as they were in their pursuit of knowledge. Thus it was that the entire freshman class was unprepared for the havoc soon to be wreaked upon them.

"Hell Hath No Fury"

Lulled into a sense of false security by the kind ministrations of the immediately preceding class, the Class of '62 was shocked to discover that beneath their smiling exteriors, the Class of '61 had secretly been planning some unusual events in which they expected the freshman class to participate. Although the proposed activities were somewhat beneath their newly acquired dignity, the Class of '62 decided to humor the sophomores' eccentricities rather than be considered guilty of rudeness. It was the year of the hula hoop, and the sophomores took advantage of the craze by staging contests in which the long-suffering freshmen were given the opportunity to dislocate their sacroiliacs. In the lounge, on tables in the cafeteria, on the lawn, in fact everywhere on the campus, suffering freshmen could be seen wildly rotating their midsections in time to the shouted cadences of the "exalted" Sophs. These interesting scenes, fascinating to everyone who saw them, were made even more hilarious by the costumes which had been devised by the sophomores as appropriate to the initiation ceremonies. Completely beyond description, they bore mute testimony to the sadistic inventiveness of the Class of '61.

Round 'n round they go!

The freshmen weathered all of the indignities imposed upon them during Initiation Week, however, and finally prevailed upon the illustrious sophomores to accept them into the college community. At the Initiation Banquet, the culminating event of the week, the sophomore class pledged eternal friendship to the freshmen, who accepted their offer with a deep sigh of relief. Having succeeded in mollifying their tormentors, they could at last return to their studies.

The Human Chain

The next event to occupy the attentions of the Class of 1962 was Book Moving Day. The College had opened its new library, but needed assistance in transferring its collection from the old library quarters on the second floor of the Academic Building. The entire student body solved the problem by forming a human chain which wound its way through corridors, down stairs, and across the parking lot to the new building. If it is possible to gain knowledge by osmosis, the student body absorbed a great deal during the course of the day. The spirit engendered by the human chain was contagious, bringing everyone from President Meier to the lowliest freshman closer together.

Shakedown Cruise

The end of the first semester came and went, leaving behind it a somewhat smaller group of freshmen, considerably chastened by their first encounter with two-hour finals. Any misconceptions they might have had concerning the seriousness of college life were dispelled once and for all. They settled into the routine of intensive study once again, interrupting their pursuit of knowledge only for such important events as the laying of the cornerstone of the new building. Pelted by a driving rainstorm, they watched as Mrs. Alice Lyons, chairman of the State Board of Education, wielded trowel and mortar.

Another important event was the Freshman Dance, the first social event sponsored by the Class of '62. Needless to say, it was an unqualified success, due principally to the efforts of the newly-elected Freshman Class officers.

FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS

Vice President Walter Cuffe, Treasurer Barbara Kelly,
President Charles Hurd

In June of '59, second semester finals ended the college year, and the Freshman class awaited the results with trepidation. For most of them, the news was favorable. They were sophomores. They had climbed the first rung of the ladder.

An Aura Of Sophistication

The metamorphosis which works its magic on freshmen everywhere transformed the Class of 1962 during the summer vacation into suave, collegiate types, moving in an aura of sophistication. Exuding confidence from every pore, they returned to campus life vibrantly aware that they were a special breed, destined for great accomplishments. First to catch their eyes upon their return to college were the frightened members of the Class of '63. Forgetting, like all sophomores, their own humiliations of the previous year, they made plans to initiate the unlucky frosh. Led by Ruth McGilvray and Fred Apt, the sophomores kept the new freshmen hopping for an entire week, during which the costumes seen in the accompanying photograph were de rigueur for all initiates. The freshmen showed their appreciation for the sophomores' concern by carrying their books, proffering cigarettes and chewing gum, serenading their mentors, and, in general, appearing as obsequious as possible whenever a sophomore was present.

Christmas of 1959 marked the first year in which the Council Formal and the annual Christmas Party were combined. As a climax to the delightful evening, the Campus Queen was chosen. Ann Friend brought honor to her class when she was chosen to be a member of the Queen's Court. Sophomore beauties were honored again in February at the W. A. A. Formal when Ruth McGilvray and Maryann Hurley were selected as members of the Queen's Court.

"Show Biz"

The Class of '62 became stagestruck as the time of the annual Sophomore Show approached. Directed by hard-working Ann Santilli and Ruth McGilvray, a large cast spent long afternoons and weekends rehearsing numbers for "Sugar and Spice." On March 15 and 16, the show was presented to an appreciative audience. The performance was so well received that when the first All-College Show was held, in April, the sophomores were asked to present skits from "Sugar and Spice" as their contribution to the new endeavor. "The Rich Maharajah from Magadore," featuring Sultan Ray Crosby and vivacious slave girls Jack Delaney, Jim McCann, and Art McManus, "The Steam Heaters", and "Matilda" all brought the house down.

Which one's Matilda?

Every little movement has a meaning all its own!

The Class of '62 took part in the birth of a new varsity sport during their sophomore year. Jack Gallagher and Russ Huebner were charter members of the first hockey squad to take to the ice under the aegis of Salem Teachers College. Salem's first hockey team caused many domestic difficulties for the players. It seems that ice time was at a premium at the Lynn Sports Arena; as a result, both practice sessions and games were scheduled at rather unusual times. Despite their efforts to explain the situation, the players quite often found themselves at odds with their parents, who were loath to believe that hockey was played at three o'clock in the morning.

As the year came to a close, sophomores began to realize that the sophistication they had supposedly acquired was but a thin veneer, masking innumerable shortcomings. Self knowledge, however, was the first step on the road to maturity. They hoped that in their remaining years in college they could gain some measure of true sophistication.

The Third Rung

Returning to the campus at the beginning of their Junior year, the class of '62 entered Salem State College. The change in name, they discovered, was not simply for window dressing, but was the first step in an expansion program that would lead to the granting of degrees in the Liberal Arts and in Business Administration.

Real, Live Students

For the majority of the new juniors, however, the impending arrival of their first encounter with real, live students was the major concern. The Horace Mann Training School had been off limits during their first two years, and they could scarcely wait to explore the forbidden recesses of their campus neighbor. Soon, however, the Training School became all too familiar to them. The Elementary majors in particular were more than happy to return to college. Nine weeks of full-time teaching under the watchful eyes of the experienced children at Horace Mann had reduced them to a state of shock; nevertheless, they had struggled through the awesome difficulties of running mimeograph machines, administering tests (without a previous course in Tests and Measurements), devouring lunch within fifteen minutes, reprimanding little boys twice their size and preparing lesson plans by the gross. Said one newly returned practice teacher, "You haven't lived until you've attempted to prepare a five-page lesson plan on the intrinsic values of Hop-Scotch."

Practice teaching completed, the class of '62 once again applied themselves diligently to the academic grind. Some members of the class, however, managed to squeeze in enough time to join in the social life of the College. Ellen Niles graced the court of the Campus Queen, and, at the W. A. A. Formal, Ellie Cecelski and Barbara Kelley brought further honors to the class when they were chosen to be members of the W. A. A. Queen's Court.

Clang, Clang, Clang Went The Bell!

The Junior Class set a precedent in 1961 when they engaged the fabulous Four Freshmen, a nationally known singing combination, for a concert as the climax of their Junior Week activities. Walter Cuffe and Peter Beckwith led an able committee in making this evening a huge success. The modern sound generated by the Four Freshmen shook the College to its very foundations, but it brought an enthusiastic response from a packed house. What could have been a disastrous interruption was turned into an amusing addition to the evening when the versatile Freshmen incorporated the strident clanging of the College bell system into their act.

Less sensational perhaps, the other events of Junior Week were nevertheless enjoyed by the entire class. Wingarsheak Beach provided an ideal location for their clambake. Said one Junior of the picnic at Lebel's Grove, "It was a most enjoyable event, conducted at the highest level of dignity." Said the other Juniors who participated, "What picnic did he go to?"

The Junior Prom, held at the beautiful King's Grant in Beverly, brought the memorable week to a close. Bedecked in their most gorgeous finery, the ladies and gentlemen of the Class of '62 were a delight to behold as they danced the night away. Choosing a queen from among so many beauties was an almost impossible task, but the judges' selection of lovely Barbara Kelley met with the enthusiastic approval of the entire class. The Queen's beauty was enhanced by the charms of her ladies-in-waiting. Donna Pecukonis, Peggy (Sullivan) Kelly, Betty Lovett, and Mary Ann O'Donnell.

The history of the class of '62 would not be complete without mention of the W. A. A. Ski Weekend at North Conway in January of 1961. What made this event so memorable was the athletic prowess exhibited by Sandra Carpenter, who was the first person in the history of the north country to ski the entire length of the beginners' slope backwards. Later in the evening, Sandra's phenomenal feat was discussed by Ann Santilli, Pat Michaud, Mary Hackett, Joyce Pelletier, Donna Pecukonis and Maryann Hurley at the Oxen Yoke, an elite establishment famous throughout the resort area.

During the last month of the Junior Year, Ann Santilli and Frances Emerick received recognition for their academic and social achievements when they were chosen to be Marshals of the Daisy and Laurel Chains, whose members assisted at the Commencement exercises of the Class of '61. At the same time, the Junior Class took the first step toward a successful Senior year when they elected their Senior Class Officers: Walter Cuffe, Frank Hall, Ruth McGilvray, and Maryann Hurley. Having completed an exhausting year, the Class of 1962 then departed for a well-deserved vacation, from which they would return to enter their last, most important college year.

The Home Stretch

Professional attitudes and professional attire were the order of the day for the Class of '62 when they returned to the College. For those on campus, the class seemed a great deal smaller than it had been the previous June. The reason for this seeming decimation was that during each of the first three quarters of the year one third of the class's members were gaining experience in their chosen field by practice teaching in their home communities. Reactions of returning seniors were varied, but the consensus of opinion was that the teaching profession would be both a pleasant and a rewarding one.

Choose Your Partner!

The first event of the 1961-1962 social calendar was the CLIPPER Hoedown. An enthusiastic group of square dancing aficionados stepped to the spirited calls of Joe Perkins. Phil Tache won the award for the most appropriate costume of the evening.

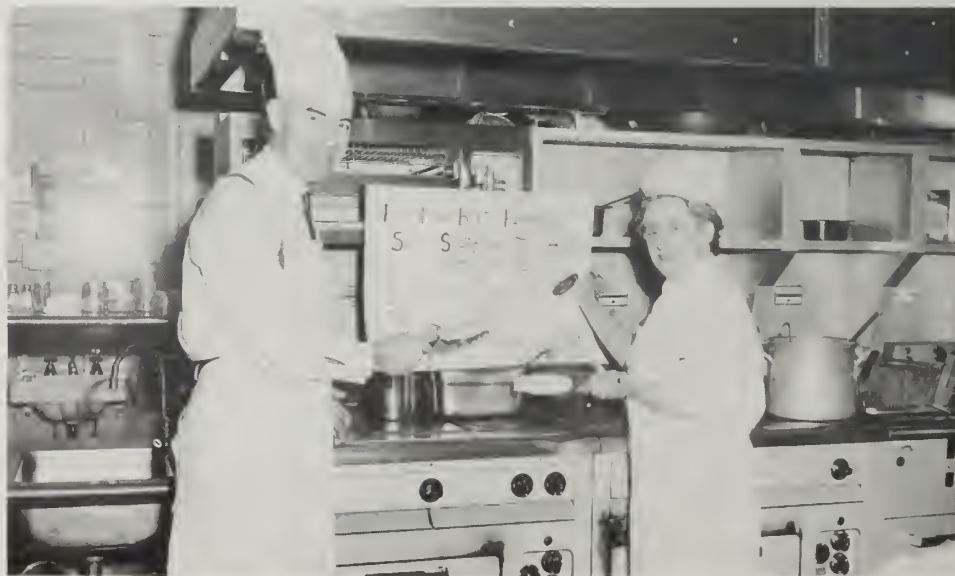

Shine On, Harvest Queen

On November 2, 1961, a new tradition was born, when, through the combined efforts of the Sophomore Class and Log editor Ed Cunha, Salem's first Harvest Queen was chosen. Conceived in an effort to develop more school spirit, the competition achieved its aim at the final soccer game of the season. The largest crowd ever to attend a Salem soccer match saw Sophomore Judy Forrest crowned Queen. Senior Donna Wood was one of the four beauties to reach the finals of the competition. Salem's new athletic symbol, the Viking, made his first personal appearance at the game which, appropriately enough, Salem won.

In late November, Salem's dramatic club, The Footlighters, presented Emlyn Williams' "Night Must Fall" to an appreciative audience. Frank Hall, as Danny, and John Cote, as the inimitable Inspector Belsize, were members of the talented cast.

television station paradoxically resulted in the most widely enjoyed affair of the college year. Under the sponsorship of the Student Council, the entire College rallied to the support of WGBH by staging an all-day Campus Carnival that raised more than a thousand dollars for the station's rebuilding fund. In the morning, the new gymnasium was transformed into a replica of a typical carnival midway. The enticing spiels of barkers from various campus organizations rent the air as each group endeavored to attract customers to its booth. At noon the culinary talents of such faculty stalwarts as Dean Smith, Mr. Xanthaky, Mr. Piemonte, and Mr. Antone were put on display in the cafeteria, where a famished crowd consumed mountainous stacks of flapjacks. To the surprise of the aforesaid members of the faculty, no visible signs of distress were evidenced and the entire group was able to attend the climax of the day's events, the All-College Show, where the highlight of an afternoon marked by many talented performances was the faculty band, a collection of superb musicians under the inspired direction of Maestro Pete Williams.

Campus Queen Ellie Niles

"Lovely To Look At . . ."

The College's next two social functions were marked by the honors accorded senior beauties. At Salem's traditional Christmas Formal, "Sleigh Bell Serenade," which was sponsored by the Co-operative Council, the sparkling beauty and personality of Ellen Niles were recognized when she was overwhelmingly elected Campus Queen. The W. A. A. Formal, held in February, saw W. A. A. President Barbara Kelley crowned Queen by Dr. James Sullivan. Seniors Joyce Pelletier and Maryann Hurley added their beauty to Queen Barbara's court.

Extracurricular Activities

Stout Hearted Men

Senior athletes contributed mightily to the successful seasons enjoyed by all of Salem's varsity teams. Co-Captains Art McManus and Jack Gallagher, high-scoring Ray Crosby, dependable Frank Medina, and rugged fullback Joe Sweeney formed the nucleus of Salem's best soccer team in years. Captain Russ Huebner led his hockey squad to a winning season. On the diamond, iron man Ron Leary and veteran relief specialist Bob Nicholau were expected to lead a veteran nine to new heights. President Art McManus and his officers sponsored a successful M. A. A. Sports Banquet featuring Boston Patriot star Gino Cappaletti as guest speaker. Mr. Centerino proved to be an inspired choice as master of ceremonies when his rapid-fire quips left his auditors gasping for breath. Most Valuable Player awards went to Ron Leary in baseball, Art McManus in soccer, Russ Huebner in hockey, and Steve Spanger in basketball. In all, a total of sixty-three varsity letters were awarded at the banquet. Phil Tache's high single of 136 in intramural bowling won him a trophy, and Bill Jodz was recognized as the College's top golfer.

Job Hunters

When the last group of student teachers returned to campus in the spring, the Class of '62 swung into high gear. Foremost in every senior's mind was the all-important task of securing a teaching position for the coming year. Extra crews were hired at the Salem Post Office to handle the flood of applications sent to every conceivable corner of the globe.

High Style

On April 11, the student body put its best foot forward at the annual Senior Fashion Show. Directed by Donna Wood, models representing each class displayed a choice collection of the latest spring styles provided by Mortons and Kennedys. Prior to the show, CLIPPER editor John Daly took upon himself the onerous task of accompanying the models to Mortons, where the ladies' fashions were selected. Said John, "It's all in the line of duty." For some reason, Mr. Daly was not invited to pose with the lovely young ladies.

Scholarship's Reward

A new event took its place on the calendar on May 3, 1962, when a special program honoring the College's top-ranking scholars was held. Conceived by the faculty and administration, Honors Day brought an enthusiastic response from the student body, who thronged the college auditorium to pay homage to their classmates. Valedictorian Mary Ann Bouldry and Salutatorian Sara Jane O'Hara received a tumultuous ovation which demonstrated the esteem in which they were held by their fellow Seniors.

Capped And Gowned

On May 15, the long-awaited Investiture Ceremony took place. For the first time each Senior proudly donned cap and gown. As tradition required, they would wear their academic robes for the remainder of the college year. They made an impressive sight as they assembled each day for the quasi-traditional countdown held in the student lounge. Posted prominently in the lounge was a chart recording the days remaining before graduation, and, each day at high noon, the Class of '62 gathered to watch one of the Senior Class officers cross off one more of the ever-dwindling days.

They Said It Couldn't Be Done

On Wednesday, June 6, the CLIPPER was officially dedicated, to the noticeable relief of the editorial staff and the advisers.

The Last Days

After a hectic period devoted to final examinations, the Class of 1962 began their final week as undergraduates at Class Day. In the morning they attended their last assembly where the Class gift was presented to the College by Vice President Frank Hall. Following the Senior Luncheon at the Hotel Hawthorne, the traditional Ivy Day Exercises took place. President Walter Cuffe joined with the Junior Class President, Richard Di-Simone, in planting the ivy while the entire graduating class sang the ivy song. The Seniors listened attentively to Ivy Day Orator Barbara Fahey's inspiring message. Last event of the memorable day was the Tea and Reception for family and friends, held in the gymnasium.

The Senior Reception, held at the Sidney Hill Country Club in Brookline, was enjoyed by the graduates and their partners. The music for this event was supplied by none other than Mr. Rich of the College faculty, whose "Millionaires" are unsurpassed in their field.

Throughout our undergraduate years, and for many years before we arrived at Salem, the young fellow in the accompanying photograph has been an invaluable asset to the College. His loyalty to Salem and his sincere efforts to aid us in so many ways have earned for him the respect and affection of the entire College. It is difficult, therefore, to realize that he is not returning to the campus in the Fall. Despite his youthful appearance, Salem's Jack-of-all-trades has reached the compulsory retirement age of seventy. Since he too is "graduating", and as an indication of the esteem in which we hold him, we cordially invite Mr. Pete Williams to become a member ex officio of the Class of 1962.

The Class Of '62 Commences

June 10, 1962! The long-awaited date had finally arrived, and the Class of 1962 solemnly began their last day at Salem. In the morning the Reverend Gerard L. Dorgan, Professor of English at Cardinal O'Connell Seminary, addressed the Senior Class at the Baccalaureate Exercises. In the afternoon the Class of '62 listened to the address given by Commencement speaker Judge John J. Connelly of the Boston Juvenile Court. As the Seniors received their degrees from President Meier, they were struck by the realization that their college days were truly over. No longer would they enjoy the pleasant life of the undergraduate; never again would they be as carefree as they had been during the preceding four years. The real meaning of the word "Commencement" became clear to them for the first time. Commencement Day marked not the end of their college days, but the beginning of careers devoted to the education of their country's youth. Before them lay the years of fulfillment, the years in which they would be asked to prove themselves worthy of Salem State College. Firmly resolving to equal the accomplishments of the seventy-four classes who had preceded them at Salem, the Class of 1962 entered the ranks of the Alumni.

The photographs on the next four pages are presented without editorial comment, since we believe they speak for themselves.

Election time has rolled around again. The Sophomore class has many able and capable candidates to offer this year.

The candidates for treasurer are Deems Hatch, one of the main actors in the Sophomore show; Gail Fraser, the present Sophomore treasurer and active member of the W.A.A.; Nicky Panagopolous, a member of Kappa Delta Phi; and Jim Mann, an active member of the Sophomore class.

Candidates for election for the office of Secretary are Pam Heaton, our very enthusiastic cheerleader, member of the W.A.A. Executive Board and council; Rose Levy, Sophomore executive board member and Therese Doherty, the co-director of the Sophomore Show and an active member of the W.A.A.

Two very outstanding opponents for the office of Vice President are John Aucone, a leading member of the Sophomore Show and the Social Director of Beta Chi and Reggie St. Paul, a very enthusiastic participant in Sophomore affairs and an active member of the Sophomore Show.

Candidates for Presidency are Fred Randall, the present Vice President of the Class of 1964, and the drummer of the Sophomore Show; Bob Farrell, an active participant in Sophomore activities; Al DiVirgilio, member of the Sophomore Executive Board and of S.S.C.'s ice men, and Jim Bradstreet, president of Beta Chi and an active participant in Sophomore affairs.

Byron Vorgeas, Horace King school, Salem, and Denise Boardman, junior High, Beverly, in Grade competition; St. James, Salem, in awards were presented in the college auditorium. V. Hourihan, James M. Devitt and Carl M. Salem State college staff.

Frederick A. Meier, student and guests and Philip Fitzgerald of Boston, delivered the keynote address. Speakers were John Millane, Massachusetts Department of Education, and William W. Peabody, president of the Essex County Teachers Association.

The fair was held under the direction of Michael J. Antone of Salem State college.

There were 300 exhibits entered in the fair.

Drive Opens Civic Music Assoc.

The Board of Directors of the Beverly-Salem Civic Music Association voted Monday, March 26th to join with the Lynn Association in presenting an opera at the Lynn Auditorium. Boris Goldovsky and the New England Opera Theatre will present in early December their production of "Le Traviata" in English translation. The company will end an 80 city tour in Lynn. Vocalists and orchestra total 50 performers.

The Board also extended time for subscribing until Saturday, March 31st. The college totalled 2 adult and 3 student subscriptions so far. The problem is not to sell more memberships for Civic Music but to guarantee work for music performers. The problem is to bring to the attention of people who like good music that the remainder of this week is the only time they can act to ensure the presentation of quality artists on the North Shore. Whatever help you choose to give will be appreciated.

Student tickets are $3.00 and adult tickets $7.50. Either ticket admits the subscriber (or any other student or adult) to all 12 concerts offered in Malden, Lynn and Beverly. Elizabeth Walsh '64, Prof. Giannini and Prof. Clifford will have subscription forms.

Vic's Dust Off

With the advent of the Spring season, Coach Schneider today revealed a busy season for the baseball team at S.S.C. Action will begin on April 18, when the Vikings journey to take on their opponents at Boston State College. Highlights of the baseball card this year include Captain Bob Nicolo, Sophomores Mickey Ward and Ron Emma, and Freshman Bill Myers, plus a host of veteran lettermen.

Last season the Vikings roared to a respectable 7-5 record. After a slow start, the squad picked up the initiative and won its last four games.

This year, with a returning nucleus of seasoned veterans, we expect a strong start and a strong finish. If past performance is any indication, we should have a very successful season.

I wish to call attention to one of the poorer traditions that exist here at the college. This is the fact that, we the students, have a tendency to purchase tickets for various events at the last minute. We are all guilty of this, and this is understandable. It is often hard to plan ahead with so many of us involved in other activities. If the affair is one of a low budget, or if this was a large school, the risk of last minute sales would not be great.

However, last year's Junior class hopefully launched Salem into a new era when they obtained a big name group to perform here in concert. The response was so good that this year we decided that this tradition should be upheld and continued. Since this year's affair is one of a low budget and the school is involved in a very busy outlay of time, it is hoped that the students will be able to purchase tickets in advance.

My Thanks to Ed Cunha for permission to ransack his files for additional photographs.
