SALEM STATE COLLEGE

SALEM, MASSACHUSETTS

TO THE CLASS OF 1963:

On September 14, 1854, at the corner of Broad and Summer Streets in Salem, in the building formerly occupied by the Registry of Deeds, the Salem Normal School, the ancestor of our college, opened its doors to seventy-two students. On June 9, 1963, a class of over two hundred and forty seniors will be graduated from Salem State College, a modern educational institution with an enrollment of over fourteen hundred and with an ever expanding campus, located at the junction of Lafayette Street and Loring Avenue.

Obviously, much growth and development have taken place during the one hundred and nine years of the school's existence. What is perhaps not so obvious, however, is the fact that in 1959 we were the first entering class privileged to make use of a new library, auditorium, cafeteria, gymnasium, and administrative offices.

Progress is inevitable at Salem State College. We are now witnesses to the most recent phase of this progress, the new Arts, Science, and Business Education building, now under construction next to the auditorium on Lafayette Street.

Appreciating this spirit of constant progress and improvement, we hope that our own professional growth and intellectual development will parallel that of our Alma Mater. This is the greatest tribute that we could pay to her. With this thought in mind, the CLIPPER STAFF hope sincerely that this 1963 edition will be the stimulus for many pleasant recollections in the days to come.

Message to the Seniors

June 1963

Dear Class of 1963:

If I were to predict the mood of you who are leaving Salem this Spring, I would say it is a mood of great expectation. We admire your courage. We admire your faith in yourselves and the strength you will give to public education.

Members of the Class of 1963, you are the product of a system of education and government which draws a sharp line between the opportunities and responsibilities of the individual. Our society has depended upon its members as individuals for achievement of mind and spirit that have made our system great. The continued success of our society will depend more than ever before upon the individual. Nothing that is vital may depend upon the crowd. It is always the individual — the teacher, the scholar, the poet, the scientist, the artist, the engineer — who stands near what is great and good and transmits it to his fellow man.

Let not your aims or standards drop to mediocrity or to uniformity, lest you cut yourselves off from creativity and a better standard of performance. There is no such thing as general ability. It is only the ability of the individual that counts. There is no such thing as moral and spiritual values of the crowd. There are only the moral and spiritual values found in individuals.

Thomas Jefferson perceived the value of the work and worth of the individual when he wrote, "It is the manners and spirit of the people which preserve a republic with vigor." And so it is with you. It will be the manners and spirit of the members of the Class of 1963 which will help to preserve and advance the quality of public education in the years to come.

In behalf of the faculty and the staff, may I wish you success and happiness in the challenges of education which are yours.

Sincerely yours,

Frederick A. Meier

The Making of a Teacher 1959-1963

On June 9, 1963, a graduating class of two hundred and fifty students received their degrees from Salem State College. They were now ready to enter a challenging profession with enthusiasm and confidence in their ability. Gone were the uncertainty and apprehension which had plagued them as freshmen four years earlier. What had brought about this remarkable transformation?

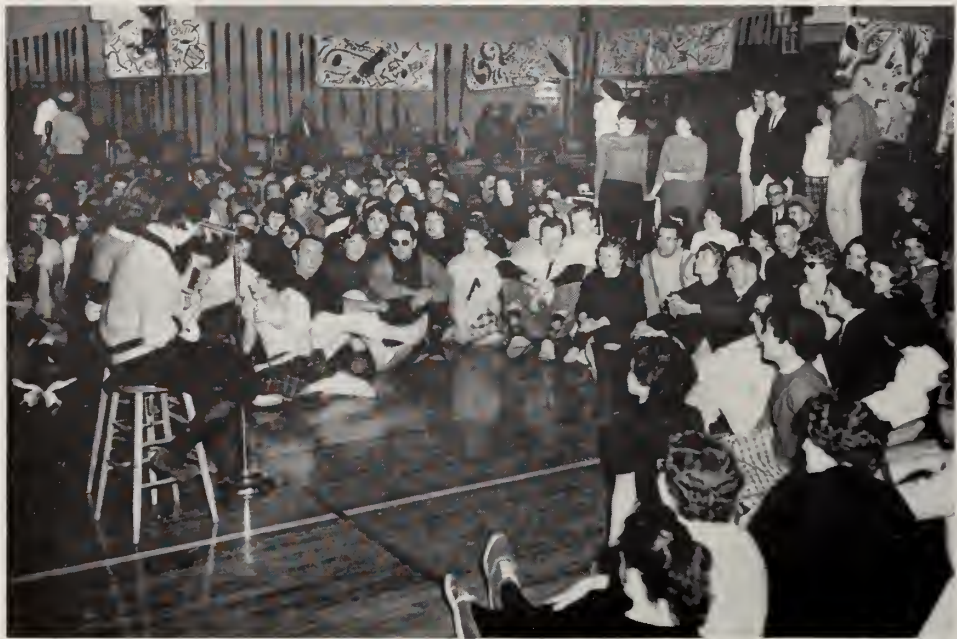

This history attempts to relate some of the outstanding stages of development in the making of a teacher, 1963. The Class of '63 assembled en masse for the first time on Orientation Day, in September, 1959. Each freshman was provided with a Big Brother or Sister, an upperclassman who had volunteered to help a freshman adjust to his new environment. After friendly and informative conversations with these helpful guides, the entering group adjourned to the new auditorium where they were welcomed by President Meier, members of the faculty, and others of the student body. Everyone was so cordial that the members of the new class gradually relaxed and began to feel at home. This feeling of belonging was furthered by the congenial atmosphere which prevailed at the All-College Outing held at Forest River Park.

With Orientation Day behind them, the Class of '63 settled down to the busy routine of college life. There were books to buy, instructors to meet and impress, and friends to be made. Wasn't it wonderful how many sophomores were sufficiently interested in one to ask his name? They even took the trouble to write the name down. Of course, some of the more cynical Freshmen were suspicious of all this attention, but they didn't give it too much thought.

At the close of the first two weeks of the first year at Salem, the Class of '63 suddenly discovered why their names were in such great demand with the members of the sophomore class. Initiation began, and what an initiation! It lasted three days and would have been very humiliating to the dignified, sensitive Freshmen, if it hadn't been so much fun. For three days, these poor Freshmen scurried around the campus dressed as squirrels, complete with bushy tails, whiskers, and carrying knapsacks full of nuts and other goodies. They waited on the "fabulous" sophomores hand and foot, sat on the floor in the cafeteria during lunch, pushed peanuts down the corridors with their noses, and in short, had almost as good a time as the sophomores.

A suitable ending to this zany period was the Initiation Banquet. After breaking bread with the upperclassmen, the Freshmen serenaded the sophomores with original compositions chanting the sophomores' praises. It was one of the most enjoyable nights of the college year, a night in which many lasting friendships had their inception.

Like Cool, Man

The first social event run by the Class of '63 was the Freshman Beatnick Dance, which was a smashing success. On the night of the dance, the Gymnasium looked like Provincetown, Greenwich Village, and Harvard Square, all rolled into one. Straight-haired, pale-faced, black-stockinged girls slouched across the dance floor in the arms of young men in bulky turtle-necked sweaters. The high point of the evening was a poetry reading to the accompaniment of the throbbing, plaintive beat of a bongo drum. Shades of Jack Kerouac!

Of great significance to the entire college, but more especially to the Freshmen, who would make full use of it during their four years, was the newly completed Administration Building with its cafeteria, auditorium spacious gymnasium, and most important of all, the new library. These additions met many student needs. The Alumni Association should be thanked for furnishing the Alumni Room so beautifully, making it a perfect setting for teas and other social events. The Essex County Room filled the need for a suitable place in which to hold conferences and interviews with superintendents.

Our Freshman Class Officers were duly chosen, representing the three divisions: Junior High, Elementary, and Business Education.

When June, 1960 arrived, the Class of '63 breathed a collective sigh of relief. Freshman year, the year that everyone had told them would be the most difficult, was over. They had weathered the traumatic experiences of mid-years and of final examinations. They had survived; that is, the majority had survived.

The Second Step

Many factors combined to make the Class of '63's sophomore year an especially memorable one. Not the least of these, was the hard-won self-confidence of its members. They knew that much studying would be required in the months ahead if they were to succeed, but they also knew that they could do it. Hadn't they done it before? With this more relaxed, self-confident attitude the myriad social activities of the year were participated in and enjoyed with great enthusiasm. Another factor which helped to make the year a success was the capable leadership of the sophomore class officers: Richard DeSimone, president; Josephine Gulino, vice president; Joyce Upham, secretary, and Marion Pagliuca, treasurer.

The biggest surprise the Class of '63 received was their first look at the new freshman class. How young they all looked, so much younger and less sophisticated than the Class of '63 had been when they were freshmen — or so the Sophomores thought. "Well," they sighed, "perhaps initiation will make college students of them." The sophomores, led by the initiation committee, really kept the hapless frosh busy. All during initiation, stunned freshmen in ridiculous grab with orange and brown beanies on their heads could be seen singing on the sun dial, kneeling in the lounge, and carrying the "exalted" sophomores' books up three flights of stairs. The Class of '63 enjoyed the whole affair thoroughly, of course, most of them agreed that the sore throats and hoarse voices they had acquired while "whispering" orders at the freshmen were well worth it.

After the hub-bub of initiation had subsided, the Class of '63 settled down into the now familiar routine of attending classes and studying. There was so much to learn that at times it seemed one could never learn all he needed to know.

Everyone agreed that the Council Semi-Formal, which took place on the Friday preceding the Christmas recess, was a wonderful way to begin a vacation. The high point of the evening was the crowning of the Campus Queen.

The Footlighters' presentation of "The Crucible" by Arthur Miller, in addition to being very entertaining, served to remind the members of the student body of the historical significance of the city of Salem. The Class of '63 was represented in the cast by Sandy Olson, Suzanne Masiello, Lois Rebholz, and Janet Murphy.

"There's No Business Like Show Business" was the theme song of Class of '63 during February and March of 1961. Nearly every sophomore was involved in some phase of the production of the Sophomore Show, Summer Odyssey. Thanks to the wonderful script of Robert Griffin, the able direction of David Whitmore, and the imaginative choreography of Patricia Cullen, the Sophomore Show was well received by the faculty and student body.

Enjoyable as the Sophomore Show was to view, it was even more enjoyable to participate in. The incomparable glow that enveloped the performers when they heard the applause of the crowd, made them more cognizant of the special magic which belongs to the theatre, and the theatre alone.

It was difficult to become full-time college students again after the heady experience of being musical comedy "stars", however briefly. Difficult as it was, somehow everyone managed. Almost before anyone realized it was time for final exams. For two weeks, hollow-eyed, ashen-faced members of the Class of '63 could be seen cramming in the lounge, in the cafeteria, around the campus, and on rare occasions, in the library. "I don't know a thing!! I'll never pass!" were the most frequent utterances of these overworked seekers of knowledge. When the marks came out, most of the members of the Class of '63 discovered they knew more than they thought. The sleepless nights had not been spent in vain. They could enjoy a leisurely, carefree summer, secure in the knowledge that Salem State College would once again welcome their return in September.

It was with regret that we received the announcement of the retirement of Miss Mildred Stone, chairman of the Mathematics Department, and Miss Mira Wallace, chairman of the Department of Physical Education for Women. Their many years of devoted service to Salem had earned them the respect of the entire student body, and all wished for them many years of happiness in the future.

Round Three

The Class of '63 returned to the campus the beginning of their Junior year, with mixed emotions. The happiness of being upperclassmen was somewhat marred by the apprehension many felt concerning their impending encounter with real children in a real classroom situation.

Meeting the Whole Child

Practice teaching was for many, the most challenging experience of their college career, an experience which left them slightly stunned, if not shocked. When it was over they were more than happy to become students again. Every day for nine weeks these fledgling teachers had been faced with the task of proving both to their pupils and their supervising teachers, their ability to take command of a class and run it well. And, oh the work that this entailed. On an average day, the typical student teacher could be seen teaching any subject from square dancing to science, disciplining recalcitrant pupils, battling with mimeograph machines, gulping down lunch in fifteen minutes, and braving the hazards of playground duty. Any ideas of teaching as a soft job had been quickly dispelled.

But Junior year for the Class of '63 was not without its pleasures; in fact, there were many of them.

Welcome Aboard, Vikings

The first event of the social calendar instituted a new tradition at Salem. This was the crowning of the Harvest Queen at the final soccer game of the season on November 2, 1961. This event, conceived by the members of the Sophomore class, and given impetus through the efforts of the Log, was an enormous success, drawing the largest crowd ever to the soccer game to see Sophomore Judy Forest crowned Harvest Queen. The Junior class was well represented in the person of lovely Sally Cunningham, one of the four finalists in the competition.

Salem not only had a new Harvest Queen, but also a new athletic symbol, the Viking. This roguish-looking creature made a personal appearance at the game, much to everyone's delight.

The Class of '63 was further distinguished at the Christmas Semi-Formal. Blonde and stately Jane Conroy of the Junior class was a member of the Campus Queen's Court.

Memories Are Made of This

Junior week was eagerly anticipated by the members of the Class of '63, and when it finally arrived no one was disappointed. One of the most exciting events of Junior Week was the appearance of the Limelitters. In addition to singing all types of folk songs in their own inimitable style, this world-renowned trio continually broke up the audience with their satirical comments on a variety of contemporary topics.

Another event of Junior Week which left an imprint on more than the minds of the members of the Class of '63 was the horseback riding party. It wasn't difficult to spot the people who had attempted to become equestrians in one night; they were the ones who found it more comfortable to stand whenever possible.

Junior Week was not without its cultural side either. Everyone agreed that the evening spent at the Pops Concert was a refreshing change of pace.

The Junior Prom, "Moonlight and Roses," which was held at the Andover Country Club was a beautiful climax to a beautiful week. All the ladies looked so lovely dancing in the arms of their partners that no one envied the judges their task of selecting a queen. Pretty Joanne Maimo was their choice, and her court was composed of four Junior lovelies; Lois Cannata, Nancy Cawthorne, Susan LaPointe, and Patricia McCallum.

Step Right Up Ladies and Gentlemen!

When fire destroyed Boston's wonderful educational station, WGBH, the student body and faculty of Salem were unanimous in their desire to assist Channel 2 in some way. Under the leadership of the Student Council a Campus Carnival was held, which proved to be both very enjoyable and very profitable. Over a thousand dollars was raised and donated to Channel 2's rebuilding fund.

On the day of the Carnival, the gymnasium took on the aspect of a county fair midway. There were colorful booths with even more colorful hawkers selling their wares. And what a variety of wares. The carefree participants could buy anything from candy kisses to mock marriage licenses.

At noon the center of attention shifted to the cafeteria where members of the faculty, notably Mr. Xanthaky, Dean Smith, Mr. Piemonte and Mr. Antone were busily preparing stacks and stacks of pancakes to feed the hungry revelers. After having eaten their fill, the students and faculty assembled en masse in the auditorium either to participate in or view the All-College Show, which was one of the best ever produced, largely because of the efforts of the faculty.

In May, 1962, two Juniors, Marilyn Taylor and Patricia McCallum, were accorded honors for the outstanding records they had achieved in three years at Salem. They were chosen marshals of the Laurel and Daisy Chains respectively. As marshals they led the members of the chains in their function as assistants at the Commencement Exercises of the Class of 1962.

Professor Bruce F. Jeffery's retirement in June, 1962, marked the end of more than a decade of distinguished service as chairman of the Business Education Department, and as Acting President of the College after President Sullivan's retirement. Mr. Jeffery was held in affection and admiration by all who knew him because of his knowledge, courtesy, and sympathetic concern for every student at Salem. He carried with him wishes for richly deserved happiness in his retirement.

The Last Plateau

When September of 1962 arrived, the Class of '63 found themselves Seniors at last. Being Seniors was wonderful, but it was not without some envy that they regarded the incoming freshmen. The latter had so much ahead of them.

COUNCIL PICNIC 1962

Shortly after the opening of college, news came of the death of Professor J. Clifford Geer, chairman of the department of Audio-Visual Instruction. Mr. Geer's kindly sense of humor and interest in his students will long be remembered.

For the first three-quarters of the academic year the Senior Class was minus one-third of its members. They were practice teaching in their home towns, and the majority of them found it a most rewarding experience, as a result of the experience they had acquired while practice teaching during their Junior year.

Honor Your Partners

The social year got off to a "Swinging" start the night of the Clipper Hoedown. Members of the student body and faculty spent a festive, if strenuous evening, square-dancing to the spirited calls and music of Joe Perkins and his band. The next major event was the Viking Homecoming honoring our splendid Soccer team. The seniors were well represented by beautiful Jane Conroy, a member of the homecoming queen's court.

VIKING HOMECOMING — 1962

Off Broadway

Members of the Class of '63 again distinguished themselves in the Drama Tournament which was held in November, 1962, in the college auditorium. For her fine acting in the title role of the Senior classes presentation of Medea, Mary Janice MacDonald was voted best actress, an honor she richly deserved. Excellent performances were also given by David Whitmore as Jason, and Sandy Olson as Medea's maid.

The Way You Look Tonight

In December and February, the Class of '63 proved that its ranks contained not only talent but beauty. At the Christmas Semi-Formal, Senior Jane Conroy graced the Campus Queen's Court with her beauty.

At the W.A.A. Formal, the W.A.A. president, Pat McCallum, was chosen Queen.

I Want to Be a Teacher . . .

Securing the teaching position of their choice was the goal of each member of the Class of '63 as the spring of 1963 approached. Much time was devoted to being interviewed by representatives of the various school systems all over the country and to filling out application after application.

Progredi

Members of the student body were reminded of the great progress Salem was making under the inspired leadership of President Meier, each time they looked at the construction site of the new Science building. The construction of this building proceeded rapidly after the first ground-breaking in September, 1962. When completed it will house both science and language laboratories complete with the most modern equipment in addition to comfortable student recreational facilities.

Hey, Look Me Over

The Senior Show, Manhattan Magazine, written by Robert Griffin, was a great success. Under the able direction of Mary Janice MacDonald, David Whitmore, and Pat Cullen, members of the Senior class and the faculty gave nearly professional performances.

The proceeds of the Senior Show, which was presented on May 1 and 2 in the college auditorium were earmarked for a special purpose, that purpose being to inform the general public of Salem State College's worth as an institution of higher learning. With the support of the rest of the student body the Senior Show raised a thousand dollars towards the publication of a magazine supplement to the Sunday Globe devoted to Salem State College and its students.

Permit Me to Congratulate You

In May, the outstanding students of both the Junior and Senior classes were accorded recognition for their scholastic achievements at the Honors Day Program held in the college auditorium. Valedictorian Pauline Senibaldi and Salutatorian Audrey Nugent received rousing ovations from the admiring audience of students, parents and faculty members.

On May 14, the members of the Class of '63 took part in the traditional Investiture Ceremony. Each Senior was invested with a cap and gown that tradition dictated he wear until commencement. More than anything else, this wearing of academic robes brought home to the Class of '63 the eminence of graduation day.

The 1963 Clipper was dedicated in May in the auditorium, with Robert Boyd, Editor-in-Chief, making the presentations.

CHEER, CHEER FOR THE W. A. A.

(Tune of Cheer, Cheer for Old Notre Dame)

Cheer, Cheer for W. A. A.
 We'll always love you day after day
 You have taught us how to be,
 Good winners, good losers at S. S. C.
 We'll never forget you, you'll always be
 dear,
 We'll treasure memories year after year,
 That is why we stand and cheer
 Hurrah for the W. A. A.
